BRUTALISM AW26

Brutalism in architecture is a style that emerged in the mid-20th century, characterized by the predominant use of exposed concrete, massive geometric forms, and a raw, honest aesthetic. It aims to show materials as they are, without coverings, conveying solidity, functionality, and a certain austere monumentality.

(*) Torres Blancas. Building constructed between 1964 and 1969. It was designed by Francisco Javier Sáenz de Oiza.

Additionally, it is renowned for its organic cylindrical forms and innovative use of reinforced concrete, making it one of the iconic examples of Spanish modernist architecture.

BRUTALISM

A collection inspired in the brutalism architecture

LUX AW26

Born from architecture's raw honesty, Brutalism celebrates structure, strength, and the beauty of what's real. In this collection, that philosophy meets the body, translated into soft silhouettes, tactile fabrics, and lines that echo concrete's quiet power. Each piece embraces minimalism not as absence, but as intention; a study of balance between strength and serenity. It's about stripping away the unnecessary, revealing form as truth, and texture as emotion. Here, comfort becomes architecture, built to hold, to empower, to endure. This is softness with structure, intimacy with edge, the elegance of being unapologetically raw.
